This course introduces students to the intertwined histories of three major world religions: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. These three traditions share several core assumptions about the identity of God and the relationship between divinity and humanity. At the same time, they have also developed in unique ways over the millennia, so that each tradition both differs from the others and contains rich diversity within itself. By focusing on cultural, intellectual, and political exchange across these traditions, this course prepares students to understand how such exchange continues to shape our world today.
HIST 211
England: From Tudor to Glorious Revolution
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course introduces the student to a period in English history characterized by dynamic political, social, economic and cultural change. Between 1485 and 1688 England became a protestant nation, witnessed the birth of the nation state, expanded its economic capacity, and engaged in colonial imperial activities. Using two significant political ‘revolutions’ as a temporal framework, this course explores the birth of modern English society.

HIST 212
Britain 1689-1914
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
Between 1689 and 1914, Britain achieved political stability, created a constitutional monarchy and widened the franchise to include the common people. Britain successfully faced the external challenges of the Seven Years War, the American Revolution and the Napoleonic wars and entered into a new phase of imperialist activity in Africa and Asia. It struggled with the challenges posed by urbanization, the industrial revolution, and the social problems these engendered. The middle class came to prominence and family and gender roles were transformed. This survey course examines the major events and developments in the history of Britain in this exciting period with the specific topics in any year selected by the instructor.

HIST 214
The Celtic Crescent before 1801
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the development of the Celtic regions of the British Isles and Ireland prior to the creation of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in 1801. Some historians have argued that it is in this period that the modern sense of Celtic identity has its roots. Important to this development is the fact that Ireland, Wales, and Scotland are often subsumed under the title “Celtic” and shared a common experience through their interactions with the English. Yet, most scholarship and popular culture portray the Celtic regions of Britain in an undifferentiated manner. This course explores the unique histories of the Celtic regions of the British Isles as well as their shared cultural links and experiences within the region. Topics may include: Roman Britain, King Arthur, the Celtic Church, Picts and Dalriada, the Vikings, Strong Bow in Ireland, Manx Kingship, Owain Glyndwr, Kin Networks, Celtic identity, Art and Language, Plantation and Colonialism, Resistance, and Incorporation.

HIST 215
Modern France
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course situates developments in French literature, philosophy and art in the context of the nation’s tumultuous political history from the eighteenth century to the present day. It traces changing conceptions of class, nationality, gender, selfhood and aesthetics through the momentous cultural and political ruptures that have characterized life in France and its colonies since the great revolution of 1789.

HIST 250
American History to 1865
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is a survey of American history to the Civil War. Beginning with the early colonial ventures in Virginia and New England, the course traces the development and expansion of the American federation through the War of Independence, the Mexican-American war, and the Civil War. The American political experiment with constitutional democracy and the development of the party system are examined. The course also identifies and examines important social issues including the treatment of Aboriginal people, slavery and the rights of women.

HIST 251
American History Since 1865
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is a survey of American history since the Civil War. Beginning with Reconstruction, this course traces the social, political, and economic transformation of America as it developed into a global superpower. The industrial and consumer-based society forms the backdrop for the political, social, and geo-political changes: from populism and progressivism to the Reagan revolution, xenophobia to civil rights, isolationism to the Iraq War.

HIST 260
History of Canada to 1867
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course surveys Canadian history before 1867. Attention is given to both the French and English empires, the conflicts that occurred, and the social and political development of the colonies. Special consideration is given to the interactions between these imperial and colonial societies and Aboriginal people. The expansion of the European empires to the Pacific coast is also covered. The course concludes with the Confederation process in British North America.

HIST 261
History of Canada Since 1867
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course surveys Canadian history since 1867. Attention is given to both the French and English empires, the conflicts that occurred, and the social and political development of the colonies. Special consideration is given to the interactions between these imperial and colonial societies and Aboriginal people. The expansion of the European empires to the Pacific coast is also covered. The course concludes with the Confederation process in British North America.

HIST 281
Asia Since A.D. 1500
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is a survey of Asian history since 1500. The focus is on East Asia, including China and Japan, with complementary sections on Southeastern and Southern Asia. The emphasis is on the socio-cultural, economic, and political history of the region as well as relations with other countries and empires in the global community.
HIST 291
Topics in Political and International History
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course surveys political and international world history with a focus on a particular conceptual topic. The topics are broad-based themes which have political or international consequences; the time period of study may vary from the late middle ages to the present. Examples of topics that might be covered are warfare, state formation and nation-building, the exercise of imperialism both formal and informal, global trade, or the development of political ideologies like liberalism, nationalism and socialism.

HIST 292
History of Women in Europe and North America
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Women’s history focuses on the experiences of women in the past but it is more than that. It addresses questions of roles and expectations, issues and challenges, ambitions and contributions. Starting from an evaluation of how scholars have conceptualized women and gender, this course examines the history of women in a particular period and geographic area selected by the instructor. Using contemporary feminist theories that construct gender, this course seeks to enhance the student’s understanding of how prescriptions and customs of womanhood, socially bounded and culturally constructed, shaped the day to day lives of both elite and labouring women in historical periods since the middle ages.

HIST 294
History of Science and Technology
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course surveys important themes, traditions, people and institutions of Western science, technology and medicine. It familiarizes students with an important aspect of European/Western culture and serves as an introduction to the history of science and technology. This course emphasizes how individuals and societies have understood and explained the natural world and their place in it, and how they have approached and justified the investigation of that world.

HIST 300
Making History: Theory and Methods in History
3 Credits  Weekly (2-0-1)
History is an academic discipline whose practitioners make a systematic study of the complexity, variety, and change of human ideas, behaviours, and actions across time. Historians gather, assess, analyze, and organize information to create knowledge about the past. This course examines the process of making history. It includes discussions about both the nature of historical evidence and the methods historians use. It also introduces students to basic questions and issues concerning the nature of our knowledge of the past.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in HIST 100 or 6 credits of senior HIST (p. 1).

HIST 301
Topics in World History
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is an intermediate level course that examines world history through detailed study of a particular topic. The topic in any given year is determined by the instructor. Examples of topics include, but are not limited to, broad-based themes such as environmental issues or the status of women, or specialized topics such as the impact of conflict, disease or slavery.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 304
History of Christianity
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this course, students explore the rich diversity of Christian perspectives that predominated from antiquity through the early modern period. Students work through seminal texts in the history of Christian thought and practice. By exploring more than just the works that were later declared orthodox, students learn about the many alternative Christianities that flourished in the past, ranging from the Gnostics of ancient Egypt to radical reformers leading peasant revolts in early modern Europe. Listening to these alternative voices, while also placing Christian history into intimate conversation with Judaism and Islam, allows students to engage with Christianity not as a closed book, but as an open conversation across the centuries.

Prerequisites: A minimum grade of C- in 3 credits of 200-level HIST (p. 1) courses.

HIST 306
Urban Europe: City and Society, 1450-1850
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course explores the European “City” as a major site for social, cultural, economic and political exchange and a site wherein urban actors identified with the multiple communities that formed within city limits. Central to the discussion of the European City is the impact that the national and international flow of ideas, culture, people, goods and capital had on urban centres across Europe over time. Topics include urban sights, sounds, and smells; streetorners and squares; community; built environments; gender and agency; occupation and social status; marginalization; demographic change; and urbanization.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 308
Europe in the Age of Renaissance and Reformation
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course explores some of the major themes in the history of Europe from the late fourteenth to the early seventeenth century. Its focus is on cultural, intellectual, and religious history, including the rise of humanism, developments in education, arts and literature, the Protestant and Catholic Reformations, and philosophical and scientific innovations. This exploration of key moments in European history is set within the appropriate political and social contexts of these developments, including the emergence of the nation state, the rise of printing, significant demographic change, and the beginnings of European overseas empires.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in one of HIST 100, 101, 205, 209.

HIST 309
Crime and Society in Early Modern Europe
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course investigates some of the major themes in the social history of Early Modern Europe from the onset of the Black Death to the Enlightenment. Students focus on the shifts in social, political, economic, and cultural attitudes that ushered in new ideas on crime and regulation, poverty and social discipline. Lecture topics and assigned reading materials describe how these ideas affected the peoples of Western Europe and contributed to a variety of ways individuals and groups experienced inclusion and exclusion in their communities.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C-in any 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.
HIST 311
British Society, Politics, and Culture, 1450-1750
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate level course examines the social history of Britain: the lives of its people, both grand and humble. We explore families, courtship and marriage, work and play, gender roles, religion and superstition, crime and punishment, class relations, local and regional identities, poverty and poor relief. Specific topics vary depending on the individual instructor. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100-level or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 315
Enlightenment and Revolution in France
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the intersection of ideas, institutions and events in France during the revolutionary era. Students are introduced to the art, literature, and philosophy of the French Enlightenment in the context of its key institutions, cultural venues, and figures. After identifying and analyzing the movement’s main currents and critics, students link Enlightenment critiques of absolutism and Old Regime society to both the outbreak of France’s great revolution in 1789 and its descent into Terror. The course concludes by analyzing the rise and fall of Napoleon Bonaparte and the birth of modern nationalism and total war. Prerequisite: A minimum grade of C- in 3 credits of 200-level HIST (p. 1) courses.

HIST 338
Britain as a World Power
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
Britain held a position of world dominance from the eighteenth century until the world wars of the twentieth century. It acquired a worldwide empire, sometimes deliberately, but often haphazardly. Britain administered its empire in a variety of ways, sometimes indirectly through local rulers, sometimes quite directly. In this course, students examine Britain’s rise as an imperial nation and its relations with other European nations, as well as the process of its decline both as an imperial and a European power. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100-level or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 340
Diplomacy, War, and Conflict in the 20th Century
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course investigates the origins and consequences of the major military conflicts of the twentieth century. It covers the Great War, the Second World War and the Cold War, as well as the national wars of independence in Asia and Africa, the war for Jammu and Kashmir, the Arab-Israeli conflicts of the Middle East, the Vietnam War and the Gulf War. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 341
Fascism in Europe 1918-1945
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate level course investigates the phenomenon of fascism in inter-war Europe. The course starts from the premise that a generic fascism did exist, and can be defined, and that its origins and ideological components are traceable, not only to the general crisis following the First World War, but to social and political trends going back into the nineteenth century. The course also explicitly compares fascist movements, and the two fascist dictatorships of Italy and Germany, with the authoritarian regimes which become so prevalent in this period, highlighting both the essential differences between the two phenomena, and also the way in which authoritarianism occasionally borrowed fascist language and imagery. Specific attention is paid to Italian Fascism and German National Socialism, and to the native fascist movements of Eastern Europe. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in HIST 102 or HIST 112 or HIST 210 or HIST 340.

HIST 342
The Atlantic World
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
Contact among Africans, Europeans and the indigenous peoples of the Americas created an Atlantic World. The Atlantic Ocean linked the nations and peoples living around its edges, beginning in the 15th century and continuing until the wars of independence and the end of the slave trade in the late 18th and early 19th centuries. Slaves and slave-traders, soldiers, merchants, sailors, pirates, indentured servants, convicts, settlers, governors and administrators crossed the ocean to encounter a diverse array of New World peoples. This course examines the lives of these people and the encounters, relationships, exchanges and clashes among these people in their Atlantic context. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100-level or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 345
Nationalism
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate-level course examines nationalism as a theme in world history. It starts with an exploration of nationalism as a concept: its history, its terminology and some of the theories cited for its emergence. This course examines the scholarly debate as to how far back we can go in identifying nations, the connection between nationalism and literacy, and that between nationalism and socio-economic development. Relying largely on a consideration of nationalism in a European context, the course nevertheless considers extra-European manifestations, including Canadian, American, Indian and Japanese nationalism; it also considers the peculiar phenomenon of “state nationalism”, as attempted in the Russian and Ottoman Empires, and what might be called “confessional nationalism”, as typified by modern Islamism. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100-level HIST (p. 1) course.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level history course.

HIST 366
The Canadian West
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the history of the Canadian West. Social, political and economic developments in this region continue to play a central role in Canada's development. Topics include the experiences of Aboriginal people, the region's leadership in social policy related to immigration, women's suffrage and Medicare; the resource-based economy of furs, wheat, timber, mining and oil; and the distinctive political culture and alternative political parties that have emerged in the Canadian West including the Progressives, CCF, Social Credit, and Reform.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level history course.

HIST 367
Canada in World Affairs
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines Canada's diplomatic, military, economic and political role in world affairs. Canada's relationship with the British Empire and the United States receives special emphasis. Attention is also given to the affect of international affairs on domestic social and political issues.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 369
First Nations and Canada
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This intermediate level course examines Canada's relationship with First Nations from the 1830s to the present. The focus is on the interplay between the aspirations of First Nations, Aboriginal rights, constitutional law, economic and social changes, and the development of government policy. Special attention is paid to the consequences of the policy development for Aboriginal societies and culture.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in HIST 260 or HIST 261.

HIST 372
History of Alberta
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Alberta occupies a distinct space in the Canadian federation. Created by an act of the federal government in 1905, the province was originally settled by immigrants from Europe who sought opportunities in agriculture and mining. The rural province was transformed by the depression and the discovery of oil and gas. Today it is an urban province that attracts immigrants from around the globe. It also has a distinct political culture. The province has been governed by a series of political dynasties from the Liberals to UFA to Social Credit to the Conservatives. Each of these political dynasties had a tendentious relationship with the federal government and the province's electors have consistently supported political parties that emphasized a decentralized federal regime. This course examines these changes in economic, social, and political conditions to help us better understand Alberta today.

Prerequisites: A minimum grade of C- in any 100- or 200-level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 397
Public History
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Public history is a branch of historical work that involves presenting history to the public or working with the public to conduct research and interpret the past. This course introduces students to some of the theories about public history and some of the issues in the field, including ideas about memory and representation, heritage and history, and preservation and interpretation. It examines common sources for public history, including material culture, archives, and oral interviews. It also explores some of the opportunities available in the field of public history.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in any 100 or 200 level HIST (p. 1) course.

HIST 400
Senior Thesis
3 Credits  Total (0-0-45)
In this individual study course, students write a major essay and make a conference-style presentation on a specific topic of their choice. This course is open only to History Majors. Students desiring HIST 400 must consult with the History Coordinator to select a primary and secondary supervisor. Note: Students may receive credit for only one of HIST 400 and HIST 401.

Prerequisites: Consent of the Department.
HIST 410
Topics in European History
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar-based course, students discuss, criticise and analyse readings on a selected topic in European history. They also prepare a major research paper on an issue related to one or more of the seminar topics. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 9 credits of 200 or 300-level HIST (p. 1) including one of HIST 205, HIST 209 or HIST 210.

HIST 411
Topics in British History
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar-based course, students discuss, criticize and analyse readings on a selected topic in British history. They also prepare a major research paper on a subject related to the course topic. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 9 credits of 200 or 300-level HIST (p. 1) courses.

HIST 442
Topics in Imperialism and Colonialism
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar-based course, students discuss, criticise and analyse readings on a selected topic related to imperialism and/or colonialism. They also prepare a major research paper on an issue related to one or more of the seminar topics. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 9 credits of 200- or 300-level HIST (p. 1) courses.

HIST 460
Topics in Canadian History
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar, students discuss critique and analyse readings on a selected topic in Canadian history. They also prepare a major research paper related to the seminar topic. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 9 credits of 200 or 300-level HIST (p. 1) courses including either HIST 260 or HIST 261.

HIST 476
Topics in Ancient and Medieval History
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar, students discuss, critique, and analyse readings on a selected topic in ancient or medieval history. They also prepare a major research paper on an issue related to the seminar topic. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: A minimum grade of C- in 6 credits of 200- or 300-level HIST (p. 1) courses, and a minimum grade of C- in ancient HIST courses (CLAS 218, CLAS 314, CLAS 315) or courses as determined by the department.

HIST 490
Topics in Social History
3 Credits Weekly (0-0-3)
In this seminar, students discuss, critique, and analyse readings on a selected topic in Social History. They also prepare a major research paper on an issue related to the seminar topic. The topic in any given year is selected by the instructor.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 9 credits of 200- or 300-level HIST (p. 1) courses.

HIST 498
Advanced Independent Study
3 Credits Total (0-0-45)
This course permits senior-level students to work with an instructor to explore a specific topic in depth through research or directed reading in primary and secondary sources. The student plans, executes and reports the results of their independent research or study project under the direction of a faculty supervisor. To be granted enrollment in the course, the student must have made prior arrangements with a faculty member willing to supervise his or her project. This course can be taken twice for credit.

HIST 499
Field Placement
3 Credits Total (45-0-90)
In this course, students are assigned to public history, community, and/or heritage organizations where they apply their knowledge and skills in supervised projects. Note: This course does not fulfill the 400-level course requirement for the history major.
Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in either HIST 300 or HIST 397 and consent of the department.