PHIL – PHILOSOPHY

PHIL 100
Introduction to Philosophy: The Examined Life
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides an introduction to philosophy through a study of canonical texts pertaining to the topic of the examined life. Course content may include the nature and scope of knowledge, the existence of the self and the concept of the person, the reality of the world that we live in, the good life and the life worth living, or theories of right action. With a particular emphasis on close and careful reading of classic and influential philosophical writings, all students study Plato’s Apology as well as at least one other significant philosophical work in its entirety.

PHIL 103
Asian Philosophies
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides an introduction to and survey of Eastern and Asian Philosophies. The course investigates philosophical traditions, including important schools and figures, from the histories of India, China and Japan. This includes a consideration of the Hindu or Brahmanical philosophies of the Vedas and Upanishads, Jainism, Buddhism (including Indian, Chinese and Japanese developments), Confucianism, and Taoism. Topics include the nature of reality, the nature of suffering and desire, the nature of a good life and good government, enlightenment, moral virtues, sageliness, view of Nature, and Eastern conceptions of the self.

PHIL 125
Analytical Reasoning
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this course, students use elementary methods and principles for analyzing reasoning as it occurs in everyday contexts. Topics may include informal fallacies, introduction to scientific method, elementary statistical reasoning, elementary sentential logic, as well as the study of argument in contemporary debates about issues of social concern. Note: This Arts course can also be used to satisfy the general science credit requirement of the Bachelor of Science.

PHIL 200
Metaphysics
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Metaphysics is the area of philosophy that raises and responds to fundamental questions concerning the nature and structure of reality. In this course, students develop an understanding of metaphysical questions and their significance, as well as critically examine the ways philosophers address these questions and the metaphysical issues associated with them. Topics of study may include appearance and reality, the mind-body problem, metaphysical idealism and realism, freedom and determinism, personal identity, time and space, and universals and particulars.

PHIL 201
Buddhist Philosophy
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course carries out a sustained investigation of Buddhist philosophy. This investigation considers the historical development of Buddhist philosophical thought, beginning with its origin, development, and expansion in India, through its movement into China and then into Japan. The course considers, with the aim of coming to a philosophical understanding, issues such as Buddhist conceptions of suffering, enlightenment, reality, rationality, self, mind, consciousness, meditation and the ethics of compassion. Comparisons with key philosophers and developments in the history of Western philosophy are also discussed. Particular attention is given to philosophies in the Mahayana Buddhist tradition.

PHIL 202
Philosophies of China and Japan
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Students study the philosophies of China and Japan, focusing on Confucianism, Taoism, and Chinese and Japanese Buddhism. This involves, primarily, a consideration of historical movements, figures and schools, although some contemporary figures may also be included. The discussion of Confucianism centers on Confucian Social and Moral Philosophy and issues such as the nature of a good life and good government, sageliness, and Confucian moral virtues. The discussion of Taoism centers on Taoist Metaphysics and issues such as the nature and meaning of the Tao, the principle of wu-wei or no action, and the Taoist understanding of a life lived in accordance with Nature. The discussion of Chinese and Japanese Buddhism focuses on Ch'an or Zen Buddhism (these are, respectively, Chinese and Japanese analogues), but Hua Yen or Kegon Buddhism, and Tien Tai or Nichiren Buddhism may be considered. Issues here center on the Buddhist Philosophy of Mind, and include the nature of enlightenment, self, and rationality.

PHIL 204
Philosophical Writing and Analysis
3 Credits  Weekly (0-0-3)
This writing-focused seminar introduces students to the forms and methods of philosophy through the close reading and study of a selection of philosophical works. Particular emphasis is put on the analysis and composition of philosophical ideas, and students are expected to participate in discussion and writing activities as well as submit a final writing portfolio in place of a final exam. Course readings deal with a variety of styles in philosophical writing, which may include treatise, essay, dialogue, aphorism, confession, correspondence, literature, or film. Prerequisite: A minimum grade of C- in any 3-credit PHIL (p. 1) or HUMN (https://calendar.macewan.ca/course-descriptions/humn) course.

PHIL 205
Philosophy of Mind
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines basic questions concerning the nature of mind, theories that try to explain the relation of mind and brain, and the issues that these theories raise. The topics of discussion may include Cartesian Dualism, materialism, behaviourism, identity theory, functionalism, qualia, intentionality, artificial intelligence, self and consciousness.
This course introduces central topics in the theory of knowledge such as truth and rationality, skepticism and the limits of knowledge, self-knowledge and personal identity, relativism and the objectivity of knowledge, and the role of perception, memory and reason as sources of knowledge.

PHIL 220
Symbolic Logic II
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is an intensive study of predicate logic with identity. Topics include translation of ordinary language into symbolic form, semantics, tree tests for consistency and validity, derivations in natural deduction systems, mathematical induction, and soundness and completeness. Topics may also include theories of definite descriptions, elementary modal logic and formal axiomatic systems. Note: This Arts course can also be used to satisfy the general science credit requirement of the Bachelor of Science.

Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in PHIL 210 or equivalent.

PHIL 230
Ancient Western Philosophy
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides a survey of ancient philosophy from the Presocratics to the Neoplatonists. Particular emphasis is placed on the works of Plato and Aristotle.

PHIL 240
Descartes to Kant
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides an examination of the history of modern philosophy through a close reading of some of the major rationalist, empiricist, and transcendental idealist contributors of the period such as Descartes, Leibniz, Locke, Berkeley, Hume and Kant.

PHIL 247
Continental Philosophy: Heidegger to Foucault
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides an introduction to twentieth century continental European philosophy through a close reading of some of the century’s major philosophical contributors such as Husserl, Heidegger, Levinas, Derrida, Foucault and Badiou. Specific topics may include: phenomenology, hermeneutics, deconstruction, post-structuralism, and materialist dialectics.

PHIL 248
American Philosophies
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the historical development of American philosophy from the 19th century to the present, with a particular emphasis on the transcendentalist (Ralph Waldo Emerson and Henry David Thoreau) and pragmatist (William James, John Dewey, Charles Peirce, Jane Addams, Alain Locke) traditions of the United States. African American, Latin American, Caribbean and Indigenous philosophers may also be examined (figures such as W.E.B. DuBois, Vine Deloria, Jr., and Enrique Dussel) as contributors and respondents to these philosophical movements.

PHIL 250
Ethics
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course involves an examination of fundamental questions and theoretical answers in the philosophical discipline of ethics. Through a detailed study of important and influential texts in the philosophy of ethics, students develop the ability to understand and critically assess various philosophical systems of thought concerning moral judgements and ethical obligations.

PHIL 265
Philosophy of Science
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course introduces central issues in contemporary philosophy of science. Topics may include theory evaluation, paradigm shifts and theory change, laws of nature, causation and explanation, the rationality of science and its social and historical setting.

PHIL 270
Social and Political Philosophy
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course provides an introduction to social and political philosophy. The course poses the following questions: what is the nature of politics; what is the state; what is civil society; what (if any) are citizens’ political obligations and rights? Readings are drawn from canonical philosophers such as Plato, Aristotle, Aquinas, Machiavelli, Hobbes, Spinoza, Rousseau, Hegel and Marx.

PHIL 280
Aesthetics
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
Aesthetics is the branch of philosophy that studies art, beauty and taste. This course introduces aesthetics through the study of theories of art, aesthetic experience, aesthetic judgement and the role of art in society. Students read classical and contemporary writings in aesthetics and apply them to concrete examples of various media, including visual art, music and literature.

PHIL 291
Existentialism
3 Credits Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is an introduction to existential philosophy. Through close reading of texts, students study some of the main themes of existential philosophy, such as anxiety, authenticity, bad faith, absurdity, the meaning of human life, and the self as finite and situated self-making. Particular attention is paid to the existential conception of philosophy as a truthful explication of concrete experience rather than the theoretical pursuit of abstract truth. Readings are drawn from the works of major figures in 19th and 20th century existential philosophy, such as Kierkegaard, Nietzsche, Sartre, Camus and Marcel.
PHIL 301
Comparative Philosophy
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this topic based course, students study one or more non-Western, particularly Asian, philosophical tradition in comparison with approaches taken in the Western philosophical tradition. Issues for comparison between non-Western and Western philosophies may include methods and aims; the relation between religion and philosophy; views on the nature of reality, truth, the self, morality, justice, suffering, desire, and/or reason.

PHIL 305
Studies in the Self
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this course, students study the nature of the Self, drawing on one or more philosophical perspectives. The topic(s) of any particular section may vary. Possible topics include personal identity, the reality of the self, the soul, subjectivity, knowledge of self and others, and freedom and the will. Each section of this course requires that students produce a research essay that incorporates scholarly sources other than the course readings. This course may be taken up to three times, provided the course topic is different.

PHIL 325
Risk, Choice and Rationality
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course is a study of the formal theory of rationality, including probability, induction, and elementary decision theory. Rational theories regarding an agent’s choice, both individually and in a group, under ignorance or under risk, and when acting competitively or cooperatively, are examined in detail. Note: This Arts course can also be used to satisfy the general science credit requirement of the Bachelor of Science.

PHIL 330
Plato
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
With a view to both theoretical and moral issues, this course engages in a focused study of Plato and his philosophy. Students will engage in close readings of some of Plato’s writings and will evaluate secondary literature on Plato. Some consideration may also be given to Academic Platonism and neo-Platonism.

PHIL 331
Philosophy of Love
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course engages in a philosophical investigation of love. Through a study of classic works of philosophy, students examine the experience of love, the meaning of love, the value of love, and philosophy’s relationship to love. Special attention will be paid to Plato’s theory of love as it is expressed in the Symposium.

PHIL 333
Philosophy of Sex and Sexuality
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course offers a philosophical analysis of human sexuality. On top of providing an overview of human sexuality as it has been treated in classic works of philosophy, it also looks at the treatment of sexuality in contemporary philosophy. Topics may include gender and oppression, the legitimacy of consent, the politics of sexual relations/interactions, sexuality and embodiment, the morality of seduction, genealogy and sexuality, and the character of heteronormativity and ‘perversion’.

PHIL 341
Continental Rationalism
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the philosophies of such early modern philosophers as Descartes, Malebranche, Spinoza, and Leibniz. Through a close study of the rigorously systematic metaphysics, epistemology, and natural philosophy of these thinkers, this course traces the significant and renowned movement in the history of philosophy known as “Rationalism”.

PHIL 342
British Empiricism
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the philosophies of such early modern philosophers as Locke, Berkeley, and Hume. For their emphasis on sense experience and sensory perception in their respective philosophical systems of thought, these British philosophers are known as members of the prominent and important movement in the history of philosophy referred to as “Empiricism”.

PHIL 355
Philosophy of the Environment
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course introduces central issues in the philosophy of the environment. Topics include the meaning of Nature, foundational ethical theories as applied to the environment, animal rights, anthropocentrism, biocentrism, ecocentrism, conservationism, sustainability, deep ecology and social ecology, and the aesthetics of natural environments.

PHIL 357
Philosophy of Religion
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
Students examine the nature of religious belief, religious experience, and religious life from a philosophical perspective. Specific issues may also include the religious use of language, the existence and nature of God, the self in relation to the divine, the problem of evil, faith and reason, scientific views of religion, and mystical experience.

PHIL 360
Death and Dying
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course offers a philosophical examination of the nature and significance of death. This includes detailed analysis and critical discussion of such topics as: what death is, emotional attitudes toward death, the badness of death, the value of life, immortality, personal identity, and suicide.
PHIL 365
Philosophy of Space and Time
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
This course examines the philosophical issues, historical and contemporary, involved in specifying the nature of space and time and how we can know such nature. Topics may include the concept of space in antiquity, the historical debates on the nature of space in the Early Modern period, the so-called Newtonian, Einsteinian and quantum mechanical revolutions, the shape of space-time, and the direction, and alleged paradoxes, of time. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 3 credits of 200-level PHIL (p. 1) courses.

PHIL 370
Studies in Political Philosophy
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this course, students study a topic in political philosophy. The topic for any particular section varies. Possible topics include: liberalism and its critics, the philosophy of power, the nature of law, theories of justice, Plato's Statesman, and Aristotle's Politics. Each section of this course requires that students produce a research essay that incorporates scholarly sources other than the course readings. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 3 credits of 200-level PHIL (p. 1) courses.

PHIL 381
Philosophy as Literature
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
In this course, students study works of philosophy as pieces of literature. Serving as a practical introduction to an hermeneutical approach to philosophy and to philosophical scholarship, students consider how literary features, which might otherwise appear to be extraneous to philosophical content, affect the philosophical meaning of texts. Each section of this course requires that students produce a research essay that incorporates scholarly sources other than the course readings. Prerequisites: Minimum grade of C- in 3 credits of 200-level PHIL (p. 1) courses.

PHIL 383
Philosophy of Film
3 Credits  Weekly (3-0-0)
